God "Right on Target" Reports Andy Bozynski

"I drew a 100-mile circle around Longview and asked the Lord to provide a college position within that range so my wife, Etsuko, and I could be close to our son and daughter and their families."

That's how Andy Bozynski describes why he is at LeTourneau University. At the same time, the Division of Graduate, Adult and Continuing Studies had begun a search for a person with curriculum and technology experience. However, Andy was 8,000 miles away in Japan serving as Assistant Director for the Distance Education Program for the University of Maryland.

LeTourneau's job listings on the University's Internet web site was the first link in the chain of events that brought Bozynski here to be the University's first-ever director of curriculum and classroom technology. He will develop new curricula and work to enhance academic programs with the application of classroom technology. His background also includes a 21-year stint in the Navy where he specialized in long range and satellite communications, computer systems and electronics maintenance.

"I wanted to be no more than two hours away from my children, and God marvelously set me down right here in the same community. It is exciting to see Him at work using the latest technology to complete his ageless plan," said Bozynski.

Judy Jackson, Houston marketing representative, hands a bag of popcorn to M.B.A. student Luis Abrantes. Graduate students were honored at each LeTourneau Educational Center during Graduate and Professional Student Appreciation Week, April 7-11. Texas governor George Bush issued the proclamation honoring the achievements of graduate and professional students throughout the state.

GAACs Division To Begin Offering Lower-Division Courses

Beginning in September, the Division of Graduate, Adult and Continuing Studies will offer freshmen and sophomore level courses to enable adult students to earn their entire degree at LeTourneau University. Previously, adult students had to enter the degree completion program having already earned at least 60 credit hours from another institution. Now, adult students can choose either the Bachelor of Business Administration or a Bachelor of Business Management and complete all requirements at LeTourneau University.

According to Dr. Robert W. Hudson, dean of the division, "The downward expansion will significantly increase our reach to students we previously could not serve because we did not offer freshmen and sophomore level courses. We will use the same methods and formats as our degree completion program and we will continue to provide a high level of student services to these students." The program will be available at all Educational Centers and Hudson anticipates a steady increase in adult student enrollment as a result of this innovation.

Scoot, Scurry, Bustle and Dash

Bryan Benson,
Director of Alumni Relations

No, the above title is not the name of a prestigious law firm. It's an apt description of my first 10 months in the alumni office. I refer to this time as my "blessed" scoot/scurry/bustle/dash!

The weeks and months have rushed by at breakneck speed. Can someone out there find additional hours for each day?

But it has been a time of blessing, too. I am blessed because it has been my special privilege to renew old alumni acquaintances and meet literally hundreds of you alumni for the very first time!

As I've had the opportunity to visit via E-mail, telephone, letter and in person, I'm encouraged and intrigued by the diverse locales in which you serve and the diversity of vocations you represent.

Without a doubt the Lord is strategically guiding the LeTourneau University alumni family! I wish I could take each of you along as I meet fellow alumni in various parts of the country.

I guarantee your heart would be blessed as you observe God's hand at work in and through our alumni.
Keep up the good work and stay in touch!

SUMMER

Summer is here again! It's a fun time of year, filled with special activities compatible to the warmest season. For many of us, the summer months bring picnics and baseball, vacations and family reunions.

Before running out the door to that game or down the road on that trip, take a moment to check a few details.

Be sure to:

- Check the batteries in your camera and take along a spare to be sure you are ready for that memorable photo opportunity.
- Confirm your itinerary and leave an emergency phone number with family or a trusted friend to be sure you are not completely 'out of pocket'.
- Carry along plenty of sunscreen (minimum 15 SPF) to protect against the sun's damaging rays.
- Check the maintenance on your car to be sure you arrive safely.

One more thing. What about your will? Is it ready for summer? Think of your will as a reflection of your desires and financial circumstances at a particular point in time. Are there details which need to be changed to bring it up to date?

Add to the checklist:

- Meet with the attorney to prepare or revise your will. (A complete rewrite may not be necessary, or a simple codicil may suffice.)
- Complete "Memo To: My Loved Ones" and leave it with family.

The best way to enjoy summer is to know you are prepared. To order your copy of "Memo To: My Loved Ones", simply call or return the form on the right. Once your preparations are complete, go make a summer memory.

Worldwide Web Site Brings Worldwide Attention

As addresses go, "www.letu.edu" doesn't quite have the ring of "Beverly Hills 90210" or "1600 Pennsylvania Avenue." But if the address were real, instead of virtual, the welcome mat would show a lot of wear: more than 500,000 guests visited in the past year alone.

LeTourneau University's website, www.letu.edu/, has become the single most read publication the University publishes. As many as 40,000 off-campus computer users visit the website each month.

Visitors have a lot to see. According to Webmaster Mark Roedel, there are over 1,000 "pages" of Internet material, ranging from alumni news to course information to the latest Yellowjacket sports scores. The wealth of information is all free, and can be seen by anyone with the ability to access the worldwide web portion of the Internet. Most of the Internet programming and design work is done by current LeTourneau students as part of their work-study program.

LeTourneau's web site was recently honored as the Grand Prize Winner in a competition sponsored by District IV of the Council for Advancement and Support of Education (CASE), covering 174 member colleges and universities in Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas and the nation of Mexico.

Mark Roedel, systems programmer in the Information Technology Department, models a shirt with the University's web page address. Mark, and Bill Gibbs, director of University relations, provide leadership to the project. Most of the actual Internet programming and design is done by a team of students.
